Event Description

The Minnesota Department of Human services, (DHS) is building out its accessibility infrastructure in an effort to formalize digital accessibility within the agency. To this end, DHS requires baseline information that can be provided through an accessibility audit of its content. Content refers to both standard and mobile webpages, web application interfaces, documents, and video content. Information from an audit will help the agency identify existing gaps and develop processes and procedures to build organizational capacity to ensure compliance with existing laws and digital content standards. Additionally, an audit will assist DHS to meet the agency's equity goals for inclusion of people with disabilities by ensuring its content is accessible to end users.
